Check the checkers.

Identify and warn the fact-checkers and their bosses

Fact-checkers... what's in a name. Who has the patent on facts? Who defines facts? Who has successfully introduced this word 'fact-checker' into society? By which right? Who owns the patent on fact-checking? Seriously. Have facts nowadays been reduced to data, and are they owned by big data corporations? If as a user of data, of words on the internet, you use the 'wrong' data, the 'wrong' facts, the 'wrong' words, you are traced by algorithms and are fact-checked, you may get punish points or, if you go too far – some words, sentences, are worse than others; there are categories according to the severity of your crime – you're shut off, banned, or they limit the number of people you are allowed to reach, as happens here with my publications. If you go too far, to the opinion of their business model, you have played away your right to reach other people, to be in contact, contact via your computer – or, in the worst case: contact of your computer to other computers. More and more people and sites or pages get notifications that what they write or show is 'not in line with the community standards'. Big tech and other super-rich corporations turns everything upside down, and this happens in a really fast tempo lately. If there are people who do not know anything about being part of a community, let alone being in communion, it is the tech-boys, and the super-rich.

In the past it was Reality Itself Who, Beyond intervenance of people or companies, defined what is fact and what is not. Nowadays, in our super capitalistic system it is the huge tech-corporations and other capitalistic ultrarich companies that pay them who define what is fact and what is not. Governments, hypnotized, go along with this and have – not officially, but de facto – become part of and facilitator and even executor of the plans and business models of the super capitalists. God, or Nature, or Truth, or Reality, has been reduced to money. People, enslaved, seem to have sold their soul, seem to have sold the One to the many, to money, to the Devil. This reduction, this soul selling, this opportunistic re-defining of reality for reasons of money, power and control – unscientifically categorizing relatively innocent viruses as pandemic danger, is a clear example of this re-defining with big consequences – is not Reality Itself. It is a reorganization of perception into a Big Bubble, the Big Illusion, that, via computers, data, on-line contact, people have been gradually seduced into, quite successfully, and in the virtual reality of which they now live to a still increasing extent. The illusory reality takes over Reality Itself, at least in people's mind. People don't feel if their body is sick or not, but fearfully trust a prime-minister telling on television that you're sick and a (potential) danger to other people. In the end, if not stopped, data corporations own you. You are a bunch of data. There are people who have let their bodies – voluntarily, what's in a name – be chipped and they have become part of Big Data. Who's next? What is next? What is next after nano-particles have entered your body via a so-called vaccine and via which your body can be controlled from outside, from somewhere far away, by people you don't know, but – that's the only thing that's sure – who don't give a damn about you, about your physical, mental, energetic and spiritual health?

In principle – in principle – all this can be stopped. Or at least if you haven't let yourself be chipped yet. There are many things to do, to counter the process of dehumanization that in the current data world is accelerated. Let's talk here about the 'fact-checkers'.

So-called fact-checkers should be traced and identified, including which person or organization or company pays them for their job. Often they're simply (part of) advertising agencies. If you have the time and the capacity of doing this, finding, identifying, locating them – and, if you have judicial capacity, suing them – is a very valuable job. In addition, if you have the courage, tell them what they're doing and that it is illegal what they're doing, apart from being morally corrupt. They should not get away with it. They should be held responsible for cooperating with and being co-responsible for a system that does an incredible lot of harm to so many people. Supposedly they are dedicatedly checking if what is published by people, including by scientists and researchers, is based on facts. In fact it is the other way round. They check if published facts are in line with the ones who pay them – to manipulate public opinion, public knowledge. They want to keep people ignorant of what is really going on, what their bosses are doing in the dark. These crimes should not be underrated. Could the Nazis have gained such a power and the support to implement their crimes without their successful propaganda machinery? When the great clean-up comes the 'fact-checkers' won't get away with their crimes that have severe consequences. We shouldn't only say: ah, it is understandable that they wanted to earn some money and had to sell their soul for that. Everything is understandable. That's one side of the story. This is no good excuse for causing so much harm to others and to the community. You don't only live for yourself and your boss.

Generally, people who are collaborating with the current inhuman system that is making us sick in various ways instead of protecting our health, should be held accountable. They must realize that they won't get away with it. When the powers change and their crimes will be known, they may have a hard time. On all levels and in all spheres of society, people are collaborating with the authorities and the big corporations that are ruling the world right now. They should realize what they are doing, that it has consequences what they do. They're not just a tiny part of the machinery. They can say no, they can step out. Someone who 'only' delivered fuel for the gas chambers in Nazi Germany was not just an innocent worker. It doesn't work like this. Everybody is responsible. If as a journalist you write that by the end of August at the mass demonstration in Berlin against the corona measures, the corona lies, there were 20.000 or 30.000 people demonstrating and that at 16.00 PM the police ended the demonstration, while in reality there were over a million people – some say a few millions – and that it went on throughout the night, the next morning there were still masses of people, then, by this obvious and intended lie, you are taking part in a conspiracy against the population. Deliberately misinforming the population in order to control people's lives with the consequence of seriously harming these lives, is not a minor crime.

I'm not talking about starting a witch-hunt for the so-called fact-checkers and many many other collaborators. But they should be known, identified, who they are, their names, addresses, jobs, who pays them, their boss(es), their data; so they realize they are not unpunishable. Their data, yes. The situation is not very favourable, to say the least, when 'they' – the invisible technocratic Eye – watch us and we cannot watch them. They are watching and manipulating – instead of living – and they are intruding on our lives; and, as a just and natural defence mechanism, they themselves will be watched too. They must know this. They can still stop their activity. If they assume they can do everything in the dark, they will continue. There is no incentive to stop, for apparently their conscience didn't work when they signed up for this kind of 'work', this organized terrorism. All the current crimes against humanity must be exposed. It must be made clear to them that once they will have to appear before the commissions that investigate all the crimes that are committed nowadays, similar to the Neurenberg processes after Nazi-Germany collapsed. By that time we can see if there are extenuating circumstances for what they've done.

It would have been nice if we could say: 'Ah, I don't want to be busy with all this, it is complicated and I've other things to do. After all, it's them who started this stupidity; it's not my thing, not my problem. I prefer to ignore it and continue the way I lived.' The problem with his understandable attitude is that they will get to – and into – us if we don't fight back. If a murderer is about to kill me – fast or slow – i can't step back and say this is not my problem. The Dark Force imposes the problem onto us, one-sidedly, and imposes the next threat and the next. It's tiring, frustrating, maddening, infuriating, saddening that we are not simply left alone, and cannot just live our own lives, but are forced to respond, respond to something we never chose for. It is like this. If we don't get to them, they will get us. I'm afraid we must not be naïve either to suppose that all our defence must be necessarily without violence no matter the cost. Posing this one-sidedly is close to committing suicide. Dead in our graves we can be proud on ourselves that we succeeded in using no violence in return, that we haven't defended ourselves against the aggression, that we used only words as a weapon. This – again, understandable - attitude means you have no real overview yet of how far the money makers, the power seekers, will go and go already. You are still in your bubble of hope. But they stop at nothing, for they've lost their heart, they've lost their moral compass. They cannot stop until they are stopped. The Dark Force is bigger than them. Humanness has been replaced by computers, by data, by misinformation, by 'fact-checking' that makes sure that all truth will be banned from this earth, by vaccine guns being stabbed in small children who are used a guinea pigs for the pockets of the superrich. And we should allow this, just like that? We really should be peacefully faithful to the money lords instead of to our children and our children's children? Is this the new world order? Preferably peacefully, that's what I would say.

It is – until we say NO, and we make this NO Clear, one way or another, or in many ways at the same time.

As I've said earlier, not only the hidden collaborators should be held responsible, the current leaders that are all failing blatantly should be prosecuted too of course, and in the first place. Their names are known. And it's very good if we send 'our leaders' notifications that say that they are responsible for what they cause, for example to your business, to your health or the health of your family, for letting people die who need treatment, for psychological damage, for mistreatment of children, for experimenting on people, for changing their DNA, etcetera. That they are responsible for lying to the public again and again and again, manipulating figures, causing continuous fear and its subsequent health damage for nothing, manipulating people for their own hidden agenda, causing a lot of completely unnecessary and widespread suffering. Responsible for listening to money (of big corporations) instead of to the people they should represent. For suddenly, stealthily changing definitions of health. For creating unlawful laws that give them an unprecedented power that immediately they misuse. We can remind them that they will have to appear before the truth-commissions when they have lost their power to abuse. And once it will end, that's for sure. Everything rises and falls – the super arrogant are no exception to this rule. Rome flourished and fell. They became too arrogant.

When people assume they are unpunishable, their dark side wins more and more terrain in due course, and life of the ones they rule over will be increasingly miserable and unfree, drenched in fear or even worse. They must realize that, even if not all of their deeds and plans are seen (as crimes) yet, once they will be. And there are consequences. 'Sorry' won't be enough this time.

Members of the governments, fact-checkers, leaders of the big tech- and bio-tech corporations, people who are fraudulently leading health organizations, you are Seen, you won't get away with your crimes, even if it would take years before they are exposed fully in the open. You know you are lying. You can admit it now – or later. In the latter case your punishment will be bigger. You have the power to step out, to quit the game. We ask you to stop. Do you really want to end up in the history books as one of the (big) criminals of these times. Step forward. Step Out. Confess. There have been people like you who have stepped out, and confessed. Don't falsely assume that the power structure will always stay like it is now. If you betray the people too heavily, if they get to know what you are actually doing to them and their beloveds, they will turn massively against you. Or do you think that what happened in the French revolution was unique? You're playing with fire. We just warn you. Out of love. And to protect love. Don't make it too bad for yourself.

Step out of your illusion bubble, your control megalomania, and return to reality. You don't really want to be an intruder, a perpetrator, a liar, a manipulator, a controller, a criminal, an obsessed, a murderer. You also want to be part, partake. Feel who you Are.

And as far as 'ordinary citizens' are concerned, WHERE ARE YOU? You are responsible too. Do you really want to become some kind of a collaborating Nazi too, part of or an extension of the health mafia? It is not enough to hide behind the fact that you don't know any more what is fact and what is not. If you let what is happening right now in the world resonate in your heart, you just KNOW that the authorities are lying. Feel how your Body spontaneously reacts when you listen to them openly, beyond ideas. Believing them is lying to your own being. You are not them. You are not the super-rich. You are not a ‘health expert’ who is even more blinded than non-experts. You are not Bill Gates. You don’t have to follow the modernized versions of Hitler, a data-Hitler, who use vaccines instead of guns to pierce you, to weaken or kill you. Do we really have to repeat the same drama again, walking in silent hallelujah after leaders who are locked up behind the walls of their ego and try to lock us down as well, who are, intentionally or not, after depopulating, who in their disdain see most people as “worthless eaters”?

We say NO, and we show the NO, or we can’t say or show anything any more.
